Japan is a land rich in natural beauty and blessed with four distinct seasons. Since ancient times, its people have been sensitive to the changing seasons and worshiped nature's gifts. Experience Japan's beautiful seasons at Web Japan !

Spring

(March to May)

Spring is the time of year for events that mark important changes in Japanese lives, like entering school. Cherry blossom trees are in full bloom, and sitting under the trees to view and enjoy their beauty is an annual Japanese custom.

Summer

(June to August)

In a summer tradition, fireworks festivals are held throughout Japan. The night skies are set ablaze by light and sound shows for large crowds of admiring onlookers.

Autumn

(September to November)

Autumn is a mild season when the heat and humidity ease up. Leaves on trees gradually turn bright yellows and reds, which are a sight to enjoy.

Winter

(December to February)

Winter is a time of snow, piling up more than 2 m in some regions. Only during this period does the landscape look fresh and clean, with white blankets of snow over the land and buildings.
